

Contents

Editorial	49
Conference Reports	50
Papers from the bone taphonomy workshop at York, September 1991
Taphonomy factors in a human skeletal assemblage (Simon Mays)	54
Short contributions
A quick, semi-quantitative method for recording nematode gut parasite eggs from archaeological deposits (Michael Dainton)	58
Book notices	63
Papers
S. E. Antoine, A. M. Child, R. A. Nicholson and A. M. Pollard —
The biochemistry and microbiology of buried human bone, in relation to dietary reconstruction	65
Harry Kenward —
Rapid recording of archaeological insect remains — a reconsideration	81

Circaea